CAPTAIN WILLIAM A. ATTERSALL
IS LAID IN HIS FINAL HOMELarge Number of Citizens Pay Tribute to the Honored Dead—Flowers in Greatest Profusion are Placed on His Bier.

As The News goes to press this bright December day, the remains of Winchester's honored citizen, Captain W. A. Attersall are being laid to rest in our beautiful cemetery.

A former citizen tells this story of Captain Attersall. He was appointed by the Council to buy a fire engine and other equipments for the department of this city. This gentleman was with Captain Attersall when he went to the factory to make the purchase. The manager, after the prices were made, told Captain Attersall that he would be entitled to a certain per cent for himself if the purchase was made, that they always did that with the representatives from the larger cities. The trade is closed and the per cent to which Captain Attersall was entitled, amounted to fifteen hundred dollars. Captain Attersall then ordered fifteen hundred dollars worth of additional supplies for the department, getting the benefit of the fifteen hundred dollars that he could just as easily have put in his own pocket.

Among those in attendance from other cities are A. Gnadiner and his son, Anthony from Cincinnati, Geo. Richter, from Cincinnati, Mr. and Mrs. John Burk, of Lexington and Matt Madigan of Frankfort.

The services at the residence were conducted by Rev. F. B. Wentworth, of the Episcopal church and Rev. O. J. Chandler of the Methodist church.

Floral Gifts.

The flowers and floral designs were in point of beauty among the finest ever seen in this city. Among the floral pieces were the following:

Fire department—a ladder consisting of carnations, lilies, bride and mermit roses.

Odd Fellows—Wreath of Marschel Nel roses, banked with ferns, with dove in the act of flying.

City officials—A mammoth cross made of lilies, carnations and ferns.

Elks—A pillow of roses, carnations and ferns with the letters, B. P. O. E. in the center.

Winchester Water Works Company—A wreath of lilies and roses.

The Funeral Procession

The large procession was in the following order:

Hose wagon loaded with flowers.

Odd Fellows.

Police.

Fire department.

Pall bearers.

Hearse.

Family in carriages.

Citizens.

Mr. Geo. Attersall, the youngest son of Captain Attersall who lives at Jacksonville, Texas, arrived with his wife in time to be present at the funeral.

Fire Department.

The fire department at its meeting Monday appointed a committee on resolutions. The following is their report:

Whereas, W. A. Attersall, deceased, was for many years a member of the Winchester Fire Department and for many years its faithful and efficient chief, be it resolved

First That the department delores his death and extends to the bereaved family its heartfelt symnathy.

lost a good citizen and an upright, honorable man.

EYESIGHT IS DESTROYED.

OWINGSVILLE, Ky., Dec. 2.—James Thompson, colored, a prisoner on the rockpile, was seriously hurt when a scale of rock, driven by another prisoner's hammer, struck him in the upper part of the eye, going through the eyelid and clear through the eyeball, destroying the sight. The eyeball had to be taken out.

Thompson claims that he had never been arrested nor tried for any offense whatever, and that he had unlawfully been forced to go to work. He expects to seek damages from the town.

DAUGHTER OF COLONEL HATFIELD, U. S. A., WHO IS A BRIDE.

One of the most interesting events in society circles in Washington this season was the marriage of Miss Helen Hatfield to Lieutenant Barclay Merchant. The bride is the daughter of Colonel Hatfield of the United States army and, besides being one of the prettiest young women in army circles is exceedingly popular in society at the capital. Lieutenant Merchant is stationed at Fort Myer, Va.

The Executive Committee and the Advisory Board of the Burley Tobacco Society completed their work late yesterday afternoon dividing the tobacco which was sold to the American Tobacco Company and the independent manufacturers some days ago.

Sale sheets are being made out as rapidly as possible and are being sent to the secretaries of the different county Boards of Control. The work is being pushed and everything is being done to put the money in the hands of the growers at the earliest time possible.

PEOPLE OF CAPITAL CITY ARE IN REVOLT AGAINST GOVERNMENTSTRAUS SUBMITS ANNUAL REPORTProvisional Government is Established—Gen. Legitime Made President.

Special to The News.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 2.
2 p. m.—The people of this city have revolted against the Government and are now in possession of the city. A provisional Government has been established and General Legitime has accepted the presidency.Port au Prince, Dec. 2.—The expected battle between the revolutionists and the troops of the government, which are entrenched a few miles outside the city, is likely to be defered for several days. General Antoine Simon, the commander-in-chief of the revolutionary forces, has decided to attack Jacmel, which lies 30 miles to the southwest of this city, and which is the only town that has remained loyal in the department of the south, before resuming his march on Port au Prince.It is believed, however, that the situation, so far as the government is concerned, is lost. Louis Borno, the minister of state, has handed in his resignation and has taken refuge in the German legation, and there now remain in office only three of the high governmental officials, General Leconte, minister of the interior;
General Laleau, minister of justice and public instruction, and General Marcelin, minister of finance and commerce. All the other ministers have resigned with the exception of General Celestin Cyriaque, who, after his recent defeat at the hands of the insurgents, is believed to have found asylum in one of the foreign consulates.It was Louis Borno who took up the portfolio of state relinquished by General Sannon when he sought refuge in the French legation last March after "resigning." He was credited with inducing President Alexis to permit the departure in safety of General Firmin and the other revolutionary agitators who had fled to the legations and consulates at Port au Prince and Gonâves at the time of the last uprising.It is believed that the intention of the president in calling an extraordinary session of the chambers is to have them name his successor. President Alexis favors either of two candidates for the office, General Turenne Jean Gilles and Solon Menos, a distinguished lawyer. But there is doubt that a quorum could be secured because of the absence of the great majority of the deputies and senators of the department of the south. General Gilles has been a favorite of General Alexis and is a strong supporter of his policies.Revolution Nipped in Bud.
SAN SALVADOR, Dec. 2.—A plot to overthrow the government of President Figueroa was discovered and frustrated. Martial law has been proclaimed. The revolutionary movement, which was started in the department of Sonsonate, was crushed immediately. Many persons well known in political circles opposed to the government were implicated, and have been imprisoned.

TAFT IS CONFIDENT

Believes Tariff Revision Will Be Accomplished Without Friction.HOT SPRINGS, Va., Dec. 2.—Representative William B. McKinley of Illinois, a close personal friend of Speaker Cannon, is to visit the president-elect here Friday. That Mr. Mc-Kinley will bear assurance from the speaker in harmony with other messages which have reached Judge Taft through friends of Mr. Cannon is consistently predicted here. These assurances are all in the line of harmony and have been received with considerable gratification.The president-elect has been constantly insistent on a thorough tariff revision, and while he has made no statement as to the outlook, it is known that he feels very much encouraged and confident that the result is to be satisfactory and accomplished probably without undue friction.BULLET REBOUNDS

OIL IN ROAD BUILDING

How Petroleum Is Used on Top of a Macadam Bed.

A FINE SURFACE OBTAINED.

Better Than Asphalt, Does Not Crack and Lump—Rolling Must Be Done in Wet Weather or When Ground Is Soft.

The old system of "olling roads and streets" is clearly a flat failure except for a moderate improvement of some of the worst thoroughfares. The new system of "making roads with oil" is proving a success whenever proper methods are pursued.

The oil and natural soil no longer go where real results are wanted. The use of the heavy ten to eleven gravity petroleum has become quite general. Its superiority has been well demonstrated, but there is a wide difference between different oils of this gravity and with the same amount of asphaltum. Some of that sold is well nigh useless, although it is unquestionably of the specified gravity and contains the required percentage of asphalt. The oil must possess the adhesive quality and be able to bind the rock and asphaltum together—in other words, the necessary petroleum.

The best roads are undoubtedly the macadamized highways found in older sections. The building of such thoroughfares with the use of oil on the surface to form a top dressing and ROAD READY FOR OILING. present a surface like asphalt pavement is just in its infancy in southern California, says the Los Angeles Times. In Pasadena there are a number of streets of this kind, notably Madison avenue, prepared at a cost of 12 cents per square foot and with a depth of seven inches of foundation. Blocks of this street are scarcely distinguishable from asphalt paving. There are others similar, but some are not equal to this. At the same time they are superior to those prepared in the old way.

The new method of macadamizing and oiling as laid down in a set of specifications used for a number of streets may be outlined substantially as follows: For the foundation grading is done by the removal of all earth, stone, loose rock, cement, shale, hardpan, etc., to a depth of seven inches below the intended finished surface and to a farther depth of two feet below the subgrade whenever mud, sand or other soil material is encountered, the space to be refilled with good earth or gravel. The whole is rolled with a roller of not less than twelve tons in weight until the surface is yielding, all depressions made by the roller being filled up and rolled again. All portions that cannot be reached by the roller must be tamped solid, and the rolling must not be done in wet weather or when the ground is soft and muddy. This subgrade must be checked by the street superintendent before proceeding with work.

On this grade a bottom course of macadam is laid consisting of stone not exceeding three inches in diameter and not less than one and a half inches. This layer will be five inches in thickness and is rolled with a twelve ton steam roller until the stone ceases to sink under the roller or to creep in front of it.

A top course of stone between three-fourths of an inch and an inch and a half in diameter will cover this to a depth of two inches and will be rolled as before after a first coating of oil (one-half a gallon to the square yard) is applied evenly so as to saturate the entire top layer. Then all voids are filled in with rock screenings of the same material as the macadam not exceeding three-quarters of an inch in diameter, with a top dressing of the same material laid to the depth of half an inch, after which there is given a second coating of oil to the same amount as before and the whole rolled and tamped until no evidence of the oil remains on the surface except as shown in the color of the screenings. Sharp sand is to be sprinkled wherever any oil remains to absorb it. These specifications provide that oil shall be of 10 to 11 gravity, with 80 per cent asphaltum at 80 penetration and with not more than 2 per cent water.

The Pacific Electric and Los Angeles Interurban railways are using this method on their rights of way in Pasadena, Long Beach and one or two other points. It is said to be better than the use of asphalt, as it gives with the pressure of the rails under weight of cars and can be taken up and replaced without difficulty. It does not crack and lump, as does the asphalt. It is hard to tell it from the latter, sometimes impossible, for the average person. In Long Beach the result has been very good.

New Road Machine.

C. A. Baldwin of Pasadena, Cal., is experimenting with a new machine, built on the principle of a disk plow, for the purpose of keeping oiled roads in condition.

HOW TO BUD.

May Be Done Even by One Who Is Inexperienced.

It is not yet too late to bud fruit trees. Keep a sharp knife. Cut the twig from the tree from which you wish to bud. Cut out a vigorous bud, with about a half inch or more of bark and wood below the bud and about an

The way to do it is as follows: A box is filled with rich earth, mixed with one-third part slaked lime, using lukewarm water. The seeds must be softened by having been soaked in strong brandy for twenty-four hours.

The sowing is in the usual way, and, behold, in twenty-four hours one has a head of lettuce for dinner that night!

Whether or not this is a conjurer's trick can be found out by yourself. No one has admitted whether the lettuce goes to the head on account of the brandy, and no one has added up the cost of the brandy against the ordinary cost of a head of lettuce in the market.

Here is another gardener's trick for making flowers bloom in a minute on a cold winter's day to adorn the dinner table:

All you have to do is to select perfect, tightly closed buds with long stems. Cover the ends of each stem at once with sealing wax. See that each bud is perfectly dry and inclose it in waxed paper.

Put each one away from the air. When you get ready to have full blown flowers go to your conservatory on the shelf, take the buds and cut the stems place in water in which has been dissolved a tiny bit of niter of salt, and you will have a full blown rose for your dinner table.

It might be much easier to telephone the florist for a few roses, but you would miss the fun of growing your own in a few minutes.

UNIQUE CARVING FORK.

Resembles a Pair of Scissors or a Pair of Pliers.

The contrivance shown in the accompanying illustration resembles a pair of pliers, but it is not. It is a carving fork which the inventor claims eighth or a quarter of an inch above the bud. Cut off the leaf in the axil of which lies the bud to within an inch or so from the bud, leaving only the bottom as a handle to assist you in the operation. Now cut out all the wood from the bark save a very little under the bud. Some cut it entirely out. Cut through the bark of the tree stock the letter T and with an ivory or polished bone blade or something that is thin and smooth open or separate the bark from the wood sufficiently to insert easily the bud and no more, then quickly smooth the raised bark over the bark below and above the inserted bud. Wind and tie around the tree stock and insertion, commencing at the bottom, strips of bass matting, leaving only the bud exposed to the air. You can tell within two or three weeks whether the buds have set or not. If they do not the buds will dry up, shrink and die, but if successful they will look vigorous.

In from two to three weeks cut the strips of matting and remove them, thus giving all a chance to expand. In the spring if your buds do not winter kill, as peach buds sometimes do, they will shoot forth and, weather and insects permitting, in due time will bear you an abundant harvest.

In the spring, after the bud has started to grow, remove the top of the tree or branch to within a few inches of the bud, so that the sap will more generally flow into it, and as the shoot ascends tie it to the remaining stock to prevent the winds wrenching and breaking it. Peach trees are budded, and so are most kinds of stone fruit.

Worth Remembering.

As a traveler passes through any country he judges the prosperity of the farmer chiefly by the appearance of his buildings and farmyards.

He can get some line on conditions by looking at crops in the field or cattle in the pasture, but the story is told most fully and accurately by the paint on the barn and the lawn grass in front of the house.

And when the real estate agent takes a prospective buyer through the country he depends largely, almost chiefly, on the grounds and buildings to set the price on every farm.

These considerations of themselves should urge all farmers to the improvement of their premises.

New and Old Methods of Cooking Meat Dishes

Swiss Roast.—Take a round steak about two or two and a half inches thick; pound into it as much flour as it will take, using the edge of a heavy plate for that purpose. When the flour has been pounded into both sides put the meat into a skillet with some lard and brown it on both sides, or use oil instead of lard. Then cover with water, adding onions enough to flavor and a whole ripe tomato or an equal quantity of canned tomatoes when the fresh vegetables are not in season. Cover tightly and cook for two hours, adding more water as necessary during this time. Just before the meat is done, salt and pepper to taste. A little of "Grandma's Spanish Pepper" is nice. Delicious as this dish is when served hot, it is also very nice cold.

Economical Ragout.—Put four tablespoonsfuls of butter in pan and brown. Have two and a half pounds of round steak cut about two inches thick and fry brown on both sides. Cut up four onions, two tomatoes, and one green pepper; pile on top and around meat. Season to taste. Fill pan with water, cover, and boil slowly until done, and you have a dish fit to set before a king.

Swedish Meat Balls.—One pound of round steak, one pound of fresh pork, one cup of cracker crumbs, one cup of milk, one egg. Make into little round balls and fry about 20 minutes.

Stew for Two.—Take a small roast of any kind of about two pounds, or chicken. Put in a frying pan in which two tablespoonsfuls of lard or butter has been heated. Then put your meat in and keep turning it so it will brown on every side. Then add a teaspoon of sugar, a tablespoon of vinegar, a handful of flour, and a pinch of pepper. Turn into a larger vessel, add enough water to almost cover meat, put cover on and cook slowly for half an hour. Then add six onions and six potatoes and cook until done. Last of all season with salt. Result is a nice stew with plenty of brown gravy.

Baked Ham.—Get a ham and let it soak in cold water over night. In the morning pour off water and cover ham in cold water, and add one cup vinegar and one cup molasses; boil until tender; then stick a few cloves in the ham and sprinkle top lightly with sugar, and bake for about an hour. Then serve hot. This way of cooking ham gives it a fine flavor, and it is not too salty. It slices nicely cold for luncheon the next day.

Ham Patties.—Chop cold ham, add one-third as much bread crumbs, moisten with milk. Fill patty or biscuit pan about two-thirds. Set in moderately heated oven and when hot break an egg over each patty (be careful not to break yolk), then set back into oven until the eggs are cooked. When slightly cooled serve on lettuce leaf.

Pantry Brushes.—Butler's pantry brushes are invaluable to the neat housekeeper. They get into corners and crevices that the ordinary brush fails to reach. One of the most useful is shaped in a right angle with the sides about three inches high and bristles bordering both corners. The wooden frame does not quite finish out the square, for in the opposite corner the wood is rounded and made into a handle. Another satisfactory cleaning brush has an 18-inch handle with what looks like a gigantic tooth brush on one end and a round, flat brush on the other. These are helpful in cleaning shelves and corners that would otherwise be out of reach.

Pimento as a Garnish.—Not enough hostesses make use of the small sweet peppers called pimento. They are artistic accompaniments to many dishes, with the added advantage that they can be eaten.

They will quite transform ordinary shredded cabbage if made as a border around the edge of the salad dish, the whole masked with mayonnaise.

Equally attractive are they when edging a border of rice around stewed chicken or surrounding boiled fish with white sauce.

To Prevent Rust on Flatirons.—Beeswax and salt will make rusty flatirons as smooth and clean as glass.

Tie a lump of wax in a rag and keep it for that purpose. When the irons are hot rub them first with the wax rag, then scour with a paper or cloth sprinkled with salt.

Prune Salad.—A delicious fruit salad, and an inexpensive one, is made by soaking prunes over night and then cutting them into small pieces with the scissors and adding diced celery and walnut meats. Mix together with a mayonnaise dressing.

Peanut Salad.—One teacup peanuts shelled and soaked in olive oil a few minutes, two teacups celery in small pieces, one dozen plited ripe olives; serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

Firm Poached Eggs.—To have daintily poached eggs, free from water, drop in buttered gem pans, place in steamer, setting all over kettle of boiling water. The steam cooks them perfectly.

AN INDIAN HERO.

Prize Story by Fifteen-Year-Old Detroit Boy.

"Hi! hi! hi!" yelled the red-skinned hunters as they came speeding over the sparkling cataract in their ten canoes. Far away in the south were the squaws and old men awaiting the return of these braves with meat to last them in times of famine. The Indians landed a little below the cataract, as night was almost upon them.

A blazing fire was made, and a chunk of venison sizzled over it. After they had eaten they sat around the campfire smoking. They were as silent as the night around them, the hooting of an owl being the only sound that broke the silence. When the fire began to get low and their pipes needed refilling, one by one the red men filed into their tepees to get a few hours' rest.

All slept well but one. That was Taw-ko, a boy on his first hunting trip. The day before he had frightened away a herd of deer through his clumsiness. Makwa, the chief and Taw-ko's father, beat him for it, and even At-kik, his closest friend, looked at him only with scorn. A half hour had passed when, by the dim light of the fire, Taw-ko saw a large rattlesnake glide into his father's tepee. In a second he grabbed a gun, and was running to save Makwa's life. He saw the rattler crawling toward the man's face. Its head was already poised to strike. Taw-ko aimed his gun at the snake's head. He knew well that if he missed his father's life would not be worth much. Crack! Taw-ko stood there, his nerves pitched to the highest tension, waiting until the smoke cleared away. He then saw a wonderful sight. His father was standing up, looking in amazement at the snake's headless body wriggling at his feet.

Taw-ko was a hero after that. His father praised him much and bought him a gun, a much better one than he had. The proud boy kept the snake's skin and it brought him much luck.

He seemed, in years later, to bear a charmed life, which his tribe declared was caused by his keeping of this skin.—Charles Smart, in Detroit Free Press.

A GOOD TRICK.

Balance Act Which Will Surprise Your Friends.

If you are fond of tricks, here's a good one. All you need is a long steel penny hatpin, a hairpin, a finger ring and a coin of equal weight as the ring.

Bend the hairpin as shown in the picture. Place the coin in the slot made by the bent wire and hang the ring on the hook end. With a little practice you will be able to balance the articles on the end of the hatpin. After you can balance them very well you can surprise your friends by making the combination go round like a carousel. This is accomplished by gently blowing upon the ring.

Pimentoes as a Garnish.—Not enough hostesses make use of the small sweet peppers called pimento. They are artistic accompaniments to many dishes, with the added advantage that they can be eaten.

They will quite transform ordinary shredded cabbage if made as a border around the edge of the salad dish, the whole masked with mayonnaise.

Equally attractive are they when edging a border of rice around stewed chicken or surrounding boiled fish with white sauce.

To Prevent Rust on Flatirons.—Beeswax and salt will make rusty flatirons as smooth and clean as glass.

Tie a lump of wax in a rag and keep it for that purpose. When the irons are hot rub them first with the wax rag, then scour with a paper or cloth sprinkled with salt.

Prune Salad.—A delicious fruit salad, and an inexpensive one, is made by soaking prunes over night and then cutting them into small pieces with the scissors and adding diced celery and walnut meats. Mix together with a mayonnaise dressing.

Firm Poached Eggs.—To have daintily poached eggs, free from water, drop in buttered gem pans, place in steamer, setting all over kettle of boiling water. The steam cooks them perfectly.

BODIES NEARLY ALL OUT

One Hundred and Ten Have Been Removed From Wrecked Mine.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 1.—The squeaking iron bucket operated in the 500-foot shaft leading to the Rachel and Agnes mines of the Pittsburg-Buffalo Coal company at Marianna, Pa., was a terrific explosion in the mines wrecked the up-to-date elevator of the shaft and snuffed out the lives of miners to a number estimated from 120 up, has carried to the surface the bruised, mangled and burned remains of more than 100 victims of the disaster.

The most reliable count of the bodies recovered is 110, two-thirds of which have been identified. The general belief at that time was that not many more bodies would be found. That a few bodies are buried under slate or other roof structure was conceded, and it may be several days before these are found. But the exploration of the workings has been so complete that it seems impossible that any considerable number of bodies remain in the mines.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1903

A DESIRABLE REFORM.

Gov. Willson expresses a determination to establish a new and better system of keeping track of the State's accounts. He is moved to the step by the peculations of Judge Boo, which went so long undiscovered.

The Boo case assuredly demonstrates the need of a change from present methods. It is a matter worthy of long and serious thought by the Governor and of elaborating to make a repetition of such behavior by a trusted employee impossible.

That the Governor intends to reform the existing system is most commendable. He cannot make his improvements too soon.

CIVIL SERVICE.

All fourth-class postmasters in the States East of the Mississippi and North of the Ohio river were yesterday placed in the classified service by an order of President Roosevelt. Hereafter all the appointees to fourth-class postmasters in those States, must undergo a civil service examination.

Postmasters now holding office will not take the examinations. This applies to Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan.

The order of the President is the most severe blow at the patronage of Congressmen that has been delivered in years. It is bound to provoke tremendous Republican opposition in Congress, as the selection of postmasters was about all the patronage members of Congress had left. The order will be extended to include other States if found to work well.

More than 15,000 fourth-class postmasters are affected by the order, distributed by States as follows:

Maine, 893; New Hampshire, 414; Vermont, 395; Massachusetts, 550; Rhode Island, 100; Connecticut, 287; New York, 2,301; New Jersey, 636; Pennsylvania, 3,388; Ohio, 1,693; Indiana, 1,084; Illinois, 1,505; Wisconsin, 1,008; and Michigan, 1,234.

Another executive order of the President, signed at the same time, authorizes the Post-office Department to fill vacancies in fourth-class postmasterships within civil service examination until the Civil Service Commission shall certify to the department that it is able to hold examinations and make certification to such positions. This was necessary because time is required before any position can be filled by examination and certification from the Commission.

The action of the President has long been contemplated, but up to now has been withheld because difficulty in conducting the examinations and securing a list of eligibles in consequence of the work that would be thrown on the Civil Service Commission. The commission, however, has been broadening during the last few years, and they now claim they are fully capable of handling this class of work.

The section included within the order was selected because the department has experienced less difficulty in getting eligibles for the rural carrier service than elsewhere. It is, however, stated at the department that the President's order was the beginning of a policy to eventually include all post-offices where the salary is less than $1,000 in the classified service.

We should have a civil service law in Kentucky. It is time that such a law which has been found to work well in the Federal service and which has been constantly extended should be applied here. This year the employees of the State penitentiary were axed $5,000 for campaign purposes. Dreadful tales are told of the treatment of prisoners at Frankfort. The entire public service of the State should be placed on a higher plane.

13. What is the thing that would make the greatest improvement in country life?

PACIFIC POLICY IS MADE PUBLIC

America and Japan Declare Intentions.

TO MAINTAIN STATUS QUO

Both Desire Peaceful Development Their Commerce and Agree to Respect Each Other's Territorial Possessions—Determined to Preserve Common Interests of All Powers by Maintaining Independence and Integrity of China.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The notes exchanged between the United States and Japan "declaring their policy in the far east," which have been the subject of correspondence between Secretary of State Root and Ambassador Takahira for some months, were made public at the state department. Accompanying the declaration are two letters, one from Mr. Takahira and one from Mr. Root, the former expressing the belief that a frank avowal of the aim, policy and intention of the two countries in the Pacific would not only tend to strengthen the relations of friendship and good neighborhood between the two nations, but would materially contribute to the preservation of the general peace, and the latter declaring that "this expression of mutual understanding is welcome to the government of the United States." In explicit terms the five notes are as follows:

"1. It is the wish of the two governments to encourage the free and peaceful development of their commerce on the Pacific ocean.

"2. The policy of both governments, uninfluenced by any aggressive tendencies, is directed to the maintenance of the existing status quo in the region above mentioned, and to the defense of the principle of equal opportunity for commerce and industry in China.

"3. They are accordingly firmly resolved reciprocally to respect the territorial possessions belonging to each other in said region.

"4. They are also determined to preserve the common interests of all powers in China by supporting by all peaceful means at their disposal the independence and integrity of China and the principle of equal opportunity for commerce and industry of all nations in that empire.

"5. Should any event occur threatening the status quo as above described or the principle of equal opportunity as above defined, it remains for the two governments to communicate with each other in order to arrive at an understanding as to what measures they may consider it useful to take."

Ambassador Takahira, in a statement issued subsequent to the making public of the notes, declared they were simply a reaffirmation of what was declared by the two governments years ago. It was "something like a transaction between trusted friends."

Body Not Recovered.

San Francisco, Dec. 2.—Although numerous boats have patrolled and searched the bay from the Golden Gate to Hunters Point, and the officers of the ferryboats and other craft were asked to keep a sharp lookout, the body of Chief of Police William J. Biggs, who disappeared from the police launch patrol and is believed to have fallen overboard while returning to this city from Belvidere, has not been recovered.

SOCIAL WORKERS PRAISED

Retiring President Addresses Jewish Women's Meeting.

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 2.—The value to the present age of the good social worker was the keynote of the address by Mrs. Hugo Rosenberg of Pittsburgh, retiring president of the national council of Jewish women, at the triennial meeting in the Avondale temple, in this city.

"Religion and philanthropy are phases," she said, "and outgrowths of the same impulse. This is the age for the social worker. Scientific research is being made into all phases of existence and expert knowledge is being brought to bear on the complex problems of existence we are facing, with the view to co-ordinating this knowledge for the uplift of humanity."

Posse Searches For Murderers.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 1.—A sheriff's posse is searching the mountains in Laurel county for William Tyree and Robert Barnes, who are charged with the murder of William Barnes and Mrs. Emma Taylor. The double murder was the result of a long standing family feud between the Whitaker, Mize and Barnes families, in which many people have been slain on both sides.

Farmer's Wife Inherits Fortune.

Akron, O., Dec. 2.—The chance reading of a newspaper item was the first information Mrs. Sadie Van Hyning, a farmer's wife of Loyal Oak, had that she was heiress to one-third of an estate of $50,000, consisting of 300 acres of farm land near Cedar Rapids, Ia.

WOMAN KILLS DAUGHTER

After Desperate Struggle She Ends Own Life With Carbolic Acid.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 2.—A woman who registered as "Mrs. Schmitt, Hot Springs, Ark.," committed suicide at a local hotel by swallowing carbolic acid after she had administered a fatal dose of the same drug to her daughter, aged 7. Mrs. Schmitt was 35 years old and neatly dressed. She had deposited jewels valued at $500 with the clerk. Among the effects of the woman was found an insurance policy made out to the name of Teresa Errington and payable to Nicholas Errington, Toronto, Canada, a piece of paper, with the name M. P. Errington, and the address 242 Schiller street, Chicago, and $620 in money.

Wife of Chicago Man.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Nicholas P. Errington, 242 Schiller street, this city, when informed of the Memphis occurrence, said that the woman must have been his wife, Theresa Lerec Errington. "There must be some mistake," said he. "My wife would not commit suicide. Our married life has been happy. With the little girl Theresa she was going to Hot Springs, where I was to have joined them."

CANNON'S FRIENDS SAY JOB IS SAFE

Representative Mann Takes Poll on Speakership.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Friends of Speaker Cannon profess to be highly pleased with the responses to letters which Representative James R. Mann of Chicago has been sending to the members announcing that the Illinois delegation will present the name of Joseph G. Cannon for speaker of the Sixty-first congress. They state that these answers assure the re-election of the speaker.

Representative Mann admitted that he had received unequivocal answers from more than a majority of the Republicans of the house saying that they would support Mr. Cannon. This number has not yet reached a majority of the house. Mr. Mann explained that a number, principally new members, had written that they desired to look over the situation and investigate the subject more thoroughly before replying in a way that might be considered as a pledge. It is said that only one member of the house has replied that he will oppose the re-election of Mr. Cannon as speaker.

Trackman Prevents Wreck.

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 2.—An attempt was made to wreck the Toledo, Peoria & Western passenger train between Effener and Sheldon stations. H. Rapmore, a trackman, on a speeder, was ditched at the prospective point of the wreck, and after recovering his equilibrium ran back and flagged the heavy passenger train with over 60 passengers aboard, in time to avoid a disastrous wreck. An investigation showed that spikes had been removed and the rails spread.

WORK LIKE BEAVERS

Pine Bluff, Ark., Dec. 2.—While appealing as last recourse to President Roosevelt that permission be granted to cut through government levee and change the course of the Arkansas river, leaving Pine Bluff "high and dry," but safe every available man in this city will be put to work strengthening already crumbling banks until the crest of a 16-foot rise passes this point, probably tonight in an effort to prevent an overflow which would mean the destruction of property valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars and possibly loss of life. Whether their efforts will be successful is problematical.

Standard Employee Is Missing.

Lisbon, O., Dec. 2.—John I. Scott, superintendent of construction work for the Standard Oil company on a new pipe line being built between Darlington and Beaver Falls, Pa., is missing, and foul play is feared. The marriage of Miss Frances Bishop, of Cynthiana, to Mr. Samuel J. Ashbrook, of this city, was solemnized Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the handsome home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell V. Bishop, on Clinton street, in Cynthiana.

The wedding was an event in the social history of that city. The attractive home with its large old halls and rooms, lends itself well for decorating and all the appointments were carried out with exquisite taste. Before the double windows in the front drawing room beautiful altar of smilax and plants made lovely setting for the bridal party. Falling over the curtains were trailing vines of smilax, which also fringed the archways and chandeliers. On each side Cathedral candles burned in dull brass candlesticks, placed on tall pedestals.

As the guests gathered, a program of wedding music was played by Saxon and Trost's orchestra. The Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin announced the bridal procession, which came slowly down the stairway through the hall and into the drawing rooms to the altar. First came the bride's sister, Miss Amy Russel Bishop and Miss Lucille Amerman carrying tall white staves tied with immense bows of white ribbon; then the officiating minister, Rev. E. L. Southgate, followed by the groom attended by his brother, Mr. Cyrus Ashbrook, of Lexington; then came the Maid of Honor, Miss Bird Wells, in an exquisite gown of pink silk muslin, carrying white chrysanthemums. Preceding the bride, who entered with her father, was the ring bearer, beautiful little Helen Dedman, in a fluffy dress of muslin and lace. After the ceremony, Mendelsohn's Wedding March was played, and congratulations followed.

The bride, who is one of Cynthiana's most charming girls, was never lovelier than in her exquisite wedding gown of white satin muslin over taffeta with Duchess lace.

Bertha. Her tulle veil was fastened in her hair with lillies of the valley and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lillies.

In the dining room the table was covered with lace over pink and was beautiful with festoons of smilax and white chrysanthemums, a huge wedding cake, heart shaped bon bon dishes and pink shaded candles. Individual ices and heart shaped cakes were served.

WOMAN'S CLUB IS TO HAVE TOWN CLEANED.

Council of Richmond Backs Ladies Who Shall See That Dirt is Removed.

RICHMOND, Ky., Dec. 2.—The health department of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, under the leadership of Mrs. Thomas J. Smith and Mrs. Ben L. Banks, of Richmond, urged the seventy Federated Clubs of Kentucky to sell the Red Cross Christmas Stamps, and thus aid in the crusade against tuberculosis.

That the Kentucky Federation Club of this city is determined to do everything in its power to put a stop to the spread of the white plague, was brought to light when it was learned that this energetic body of women made plans by which in the course of another week they will begin waging war on the filth of the town.

Backed by the members of the city council the leaders of the Women's Club, with an army composed of men and boys will clean the town from one end to the other, including every street and alleyway, of all the filth and garbage than can possibly be located.

The first name of Broom Ball to be played in the Broom Ball and Polo League that was formed some time ago by the managers and owners of the leading rinks in Central Kentucky was played in Lexington Tuesday night between the teams from Lexington and Maysville. It resulted in a victory for Lexington.

The game will not count in the awarding of the pennant at the close of the season as it was only played as an exhibition game. Representatives from Winchester, Nicholasville and other towns that are in the league were present to see the game played. Winchester was represented by D. B. Scobee, manager of the Auditorium and several of the men will play on the Winchester team. The game is a very interesting one and was witnessed by a large crowd. The first game to be played here will be played the first of next week between Winchester and Nicholasville.

TURKISH TOBACCO

WAS NOT SUCCESS.

Experiment of Growing it in Kentucky Results in Failure.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 2.—The suggestion made to Gov. Wilson in a letter from a New York cigarette manufacturer that Turkish tobacco worth $1 a pound could be grown successfully in Kentucky, and would mean millions to the tobacco growers of Kentucky, is not received with favor here in Fayette county, where the experiment was tried under favorable conditions two years ago and pronounced a failure. The experiment was made under the direction of F. R. Toewater, manager of the American Tobacco Company on the farm of R. M. Squires, near Chillicothe, this county. The stalks grew about five feet high, but the leaves were not much larger than a man's hand and of such an inferior quality that Mr. Toewater pronounced the experiment a failure, and the tobacco produced not worth a cent. Since then no further test has been made.

COUNTRY STORE IS ROBBED.

SHARPSBURG, Ky., Dec. 2.—The store of A. B. Schmit, at Moore's Ferry, this county, was robbed Monday night. Besides taking $20 in cash, the thieves helped themselves to knives, pistols, shoes, etc. Bloodhounds from Mt. Sterling were taken to the scene, and the guilty ones were trailed two miles to the Licking river, where they evidently got in a skiff and escaped with their booty. The hounds tracked the thieves from inside the store, through a window, where they must have entered, going right to the river.

CHAPTER XII.

Luella Knapp.

Two women rose to greet me as I entered the room.

"Good evening," said the elder woman, shaking out her hand. "You have neglected us for a long time." There was something of reproach as well as civility in the voice.

"Yes," I replied, adjusting my manner nicely to her, "I have been very busy."

"Busy? How provoking of you to say so! You should never be too busy to take the commands of the ladies."

"That is why I am here," I interrupted with my best bow. But she continued without noting it:

"Luella wagered me that you would make that excuse. I expected something more original."

"I am very sorry," I said, with a reflection of the bantering air she had assumed.

"Oh, indeed!" exclaimed the younger woman, to whom my eyes had turned as Mrs. Knapp spoke her name. "How very unkind of you to say so, when I have just won a pair of gloves by it. Good evening to you!" And she held out her hand.

It was with strong effort that I kept my self-possession, as for the first time I clasped the hand of Luella Knapp.

Was it the thrill of her touch, the glance of her eye, or the magnetism of her presence, that set my pulses racing to a new measure, and gave my spirit a breath from a new world? What ever the case, as I looked into the clear-cut face and the frank gray eyes of the woman before me, I was swept by a flood of emotion that was near overpowering my self-control.

I mastered the emotion in a moment and took the seat to which she had waved me.

I was puzzled a little at the tone in which she addressed me. There was a suggestion of resentment in her manner that grew on me as we talked.

Can I describe her? Of what use to try? She was not beautiful, and "pretty" was too petty a word to apply to Luella Knapp. "Fine looking," if said with the proper emphasis, might give some idea of appearance, for she was tall in figure, with features that were impressive in their attractiveness.

Through all the conversation the idea that Miss Knapp was regarding me with a hidden disapproval was growing on me. I decided that Henry had made some uncommon blunder on his last visit and that I was suffering the penalty for it. The admiration I felt for the young woman深ened with every sentence she spoke, and I was ready to do anything to restore the good opinion that Henry might have endangered, and in lieu of apology exerted myself to the utmost to be agreeable.

I was unconscious of the flight of time until Mrs. Knapp turned from some other guests and walked toward us.

"Come, Henry," she said pointedly. "Luella is not to monopolize you all the time. Besides, there's Mr. Inman dying to speak to her."

I promptly hated Mr. Inman with all my heart and felt not the slightest objection to his demise; but at her gesture of command I rose and accompanied Mrs. Knapp, as a young man with eye-glasses and a smirk came to take my place. I left Luella Knapp, congratulating myself over my cleverness in escaping the pitfalls that lined my way.

"Now I've a chance to speak to you at last," said Mrs. Knapp.

"At your service," I bowed. "I owe you something."

"Indeed?" Mrs. Knapp raised her eyebrows in surprise.

"For your kind recommendation to Mr. Knapp."

"My recommendation? You have a little the advantage of me."

I was stricken with painful doubts, and the cold sweat started upon me. Perhaps this was not Mrs. Knapp after all.

"Oh, perhaps you didn't mean it," I said.

"Indeed I did, if it was a recommendation. I'm afraid it was unconscious, though. Mr. Knapp does not consult me about his business."

I was in doubt no longer. It was the injured pride of the wife that spoke in the tone.

"I'm none the less obliged," I said carelessly. "He assured me that he acted on your words."

"What on earth are you doing for Mr. Knapp?" she asked earnestly, dropping her half-bantering tone. There was a trace of apprehension in her eyes.

"I'm afraid Mr. Knapp wouldn't think your recommendations were quite justified if I should tell you. Just get him in a corner and ask him."

"I suppose it is that dreadful stock market."

"Oh, madam, let me say the chicken market. There is a wonderful opportunity just now for corner in fowls."

"There are a good many to be plucked in the market that Mr. Knapp will look after," she said with a smile. But there was something of a worried stay away. Don't let Mr. Knapp keep you too closely."

I professed myself happy to come whenever I could find the time, and looked about for Luella. She was nowhere to be seen. I left the room a little disappointed, but with a swelling pride that I had passed the dreaded ordeal and had been accepted as Henry Wilton in the house in which I had most feared to meet disaster. My opinion of my own cleverness had risen, in the language of the market, "above par."

As I passed down the hall, a tall willowy figure stepped from the shadow of the stair. My heart gave a bound of delight. It was Luella Knapp. I should have the pleasure of a leave-taking in private.

"Oh, Miss Knapp!" I said. "I had despaired of having the chance to bid you good night." And held out my hand.

She ignored the hand. I could see from her heaving bosom and shortened breath that she was laboring under great agitation. Yet her face gave no evidence of the effort that it cost her to control herself.

"I was waiting for you," she said in a low voice.

I started to express my satisfaction when she interrupted me.

"Who are you?" broke from her lips almost fiercely.

I was completely taken aback, and stared at her in amazement with no word at command.

"You are not Henry Wilton," she said rapidly. "You have come here with his name and his clothes, and made up to look like him, and you try to use his voice and take his place. Who are you?"

There was a depth of scorn and anger and apprehension in that low voice of hers that struck me dumb.

"Can you not answer?" she demanded, catching her breath with excitement. "You are not Henry Wilton."

"Well?" I said half-inquiringly. It was not safe to advance or retreat.

"Well!—well!—!" She repeated my answer with indignation and disdain deepening in her voice. "Is that all you have to say for yourself?"

"What should I say?" I replied quietly. "You make an assertion. Is there anything more to be said?"

"Oh, you may laugh at me if you please, because you can hoodwink the others."

I protested that laughter was the last thing I was thinking of at the moment.

Then she burst out impetuously:

"Oh, if I were only a man! No; if I were a man I should be hoodwinked like the rest. But you can not deceive me. Who are you? What are you here for? What are you trying to do?"

She was blazing with wrath. Her tone had raised hardly an interval of the scale, but every word that came in that smooth, low voice was heavy with contempt and anger. It was the true daughter of the Wolf who stood before me.

"I am afraid, Miss Knapp, you are not well to-night," I said soothingly.

"What have you done with Henry Wilton?" she asked fiercely. "Don't try to speak with his voice. Drop your disguise. You are no actor. You are no more like him than—"

"Satyr or Hyperion," I quoted bitterly. "Make it strong, please."

I had thought myself in a tight place in the row at Borton's, but it was nothing to this encounter.

"Oh, where is he? What has happened?" she cried.

"Nothing has happened," I said calmly, determined at last to brazen it out. I could not tell her the truth. "My name is Henry Wilton."

She looked at me in anger a moment, and then a shadow of dread and despair settled over her face.

I was tempted beyond measure to throw myself on her mercy and tell all. The subtle sympathy that she inspired was softening my resolution. Yet, as I looked into her eyes, her face hardened and her wrath blazed forth once more.

"Go!" she said. "I hope I may never see you again!" And she turned and ran swiftly up the stair. I thought I heard a sob, but whether of anger or sorrow I knew not.

And I went out into the night with a heavier load of depression than I had borne since I entered the city.

CLEAN UP NECESSARY

ANNUAL TURNOVER AN IMPORTANT OCCASION.

If Only to Get Rid of Useless Odds and Ends the Time Devoted to Furnishing is Well Spent.

There is nothing in connection with household economies that is of more importance than sanitation and ventilation.

Housekeepers in the city scorn the country woman's custom of a general upheaval every spring and fall, but a little thought convinces that the country woman has the right of it. The housemaid's daily efforts, even where they are supplemented by the service of a charwoman, are not really sufficient, because at best they are never altogether thorough. Then, too, we all know how rapidly useless things "clutter up" a place. Nothing short of the regulation semi-annual cleaning seems to give the impetus necessary to get at them.

It is a mistake to hoard half-worn things. Convenience is so often sacrificed to sentiment. Mother hates to part with Willie's first pair of trousers, or the cunning little pinafore that belonged to Mary Jane's baby; but these things take up space—often where space is at a premium.

Where house or an apartment has been closed in the summer time, general renovation is a necessity. When house-cleaning is pursued systematically—if the term may be applied to anything in itself so disrupting—half the labor of it is eliminated. But it is unwise to leave the work entirely in the hands of a servant. If the careful housewife does not, as many of them do, put on cap and apron, she at least supervises the process.

This is the way in which one woman achieves sanitation. Here is a large house, with several servants, but she always takes an active interest in domestic affairs. Never by any chance does she permit spring and fall to pass without the house-cleaning the country woman believes in. Incidentally, it is interesting to note—although it is not wholly relevant—that there has not been a case of illness in the house for several years.

In the beginning, boxes and trunks are looked after. Everything not of recognizable value is disposed of. Each room is subjected to a thorough fumigation. The following morning windows are thrown open, and the house is aired. By this method not only are flies, mosquitoes and roaches destroyed, but possibilities of disease from other sources are materially lessened. It is a precaution that is well worth the trouble.

Now begins the real process of cleaning—the drudgery. The place is swept first with a broom, and then with a dry mop slightly dampened in ammonia water. When the little dust that remains has settled all wood surfaces are gone over with a soft, damp cloth.

Paraffine has other uses than for covering jams and jellies. A thin coating of paraffine over cheese will keep it in perfect condition through any number of hot days, and will also prevent its shrinkage.

If farmers were to coat the inside of the wooden tubs for butter with paraffine, it would prevent the contents from absorbing the wood-taste that is so often noticed even in the best of butter.

For all purposes paraffine should be melted and applied to a cold surface. Eggs, coated with it are preserved longer than by any other method. Paraffine is acid proof, so that if the cork of bottles containing acids or other strong chemicals are soaked in hot paraffine the contents will not affect them. A small piece of it will be found quite as useful as beeswax in cleaning flatirons or waxing thread.

Feather Cake.

Feather cake approaches a sponge cake. It is not so light, but proper sifting of flour and proper beating of eggs will help in its success. One-half cupful of butter, two of sugar, three cupfuls of flour and three eggs, one cupful of milk, three teaspoons of baking powder, one pound of English walnuts. Save 35 half-meats whole and the rest chop fine. Bake in a dripping pan; frost and cut into squares and put one of the nut meats on each cake.

German Meat Sauce.

Four quarts of ripe tomatoes chopped fine, one cup of red peppers cut in pieces, one cup of chopped onions, 1½ cups sugar, one-half cup salt, 1½ pints of vinegar, 1½ teaspoons of cloves, the same of cinnamon, one teaspoon of nutmeg, the same of celery seed, one tablespoon of mustard seed. Boil for three hours, then bottle and seal. Good for all kinds of meats.

French Rolls.

One quart of light dough, three-fourths cup sugar, one-fourth cup of lard, one egg; work in flour to stiffen, but not as stiff as bread. When light roll out. Cut with round cutter, spread butter on one-half, turn the other half over; let rise again, and bake in quick oven.

Useful Household Utensil.

A roasting pan which automatically "bastes" meat while cooking by means of a percolator which collects the juices and sprays them over the meat has been patented.

For an Appetizer.

Stuffed olives chopped fine, mixed with cream cheese, and made into balls, are delicious if served with a plain salad.

ENGINEERS MAY STRIKE

Chairman Knapp Hears of Trouble on Pennsylvania Lines.

Washington, Dec. 1.—A serious controversy has arisen between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Pennsylvania railroad affecting particularly the lines west of Pittsburgh. The details of the differences between the membership of the order and the railway company were presented to Chairman Knapp of the Interstate commerce commission. The engineers desire official recognition of their general board of adjustment in the settlement of any grievances that may arise between members of the order and the railroad company. So serious has the difficulty become that a strike vote now is being taken by the engineers of the lines west of Pittsburgh.

General Manager G. L. Peck of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh presented to the board of mediation the railway side of the controversy.

Wanted to See Cars Jump.

Delphos, O., Dec. 1.—Harold Molkenopf and Edgar Rutan, aged 9 and 10 years, respectively, placed several railroad spikes on the rails of the main tracks of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago road at Convoy, just before the New York-Chicago 18-hour limited was due. A citizen saw the act, removed the spikes before the train passed, and probably prevented great loss of life. The boys said they put the spikes on "just to see the cars jump."

Magoon Starts For Home.

Havana, Dec. 1.—Governor Magoon, accompanied by Colonel E. H. Crowder, judge advocate at Havana, and Captain J. A. Ryan of the Fifteenth cavalry, left here for the United States. He was escorted to the steamer by many American and Cuban officials.

Keeps Suicide Promise.

Columbus, O., Dec. 1.—As he had so often threatened, Homer Sebring, a well digger and sewer contractor, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid, and died on the front porch of the residence where his divorced wife made her home.

DIVERT RIVER TO SAVE PINE BLUFF

Citizens of Arkansas Town Dig Channel Across Land.

Pine Bluff, Ark., Dec. 1.—Fearing that the already weakened banks of the Arkansas river would be unable to withstand the pressure of the water when the full force of the present rise reaches Pine Bluff, it was decided at a mass meeting of citizens to divert, if possible, the channel of the river by the cutting through of a narrow strip of land where the river starts a "horseshoe bend" several miles north of the city. This plan, if successful, while leaving Pine Bluff away from the main channel, would eliminate, it is believed, the danger of an overflow, which would cause the destruction of a large amount of property.

Railroad Bridge Dynamited.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 1.—An abutment of the recently completed Wheeling & Lake Erie lift bridge was badly damaged by a dynamite explosion. Traffic over the structure has been stopped pending an examination. The bridge was constructed by nonunion labor, it is said. Within a year there have been half a dozen explosions in the bridges of Cleveland and vicinity, all of which have been attributed by the police to labor troubles.

A Great Undertaking.

To promote the building of improved roads in Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Montana, Idaho, New Mexico and Arizona and make accessible the wonderful natural scenery throughout the territory along the eastern base of the Rocky mountains the Rocky Mountain Highway association has been incorporated at Denver by Gerald Hughes, Harold Kountz and Charles A. Johnson. Membership in the organization is open to any one interested in the good roads movement, and it is reported that already a large number of prominent Colorado citizens have signified their intention of joining. The money for carrying out the plans of the association will be derived through private subscriptions and through state and municipal aid. It is hoped that through the efforts of this association there will eventually be constructed a chain of good roads joining all points of interest throughout this section.

FORGER IS CAUGHT IN WASHINGTON CITY

One Doyle, Who Secured $75 From Brown-Proctoria Hotel Finally Landed.

The Chattanooga News of Monday, November 30, contains a lengthy account of the arrest in Washington, D. C., of C. H. Doyle, alias L. T. Latshaw, a noted forger and bogus check artist who has operated his game in nearly every State in the Union and has one victim in this city. Doyle as far as known has only made one visit to Winchester and that visit is well remembered by Mr. Woodson Moss, manager of the Brown-Proctoria Hotel, as his visit here put him to the bad to the extent of $75.

Doyle was here as a guest of the hotel and when he was ready to leave, asked Mr. Moss who was the cashier of one of the banks, as he had a check on a firm in Washington he wanted cashed. After being told he left and returned in a short while saying he could get the check cashed if Mr. Moss would endorse it. Time was limited as he wanted to leave on a train that was about due. Mr. Moss who is one of the most accomodating hotel managers to be found, favored him by endorsing the check and shook hands with him. Nothing more was thought of it and in a few days the check returned to Mr. Moss marked, "N. G."

He played the same game on the Leland Hotel at Lexington. Doyle is now behind the bars in the Washington prison waiting to face the many different charges of forgery that will be brought against him.

Doyle's plan was to select the names of business houses in different sections of the country, procure their billheads, or have copies of them printed, and obtain checks on banks in the cities in which the houses were located. He also had cards printed announcing himself as representative of the firms. In his valise the police found billheads of firms he pretended to represent and of the aliases he had assumed.

Poll of Senators and Assemblymen Show Majority Unfavorable to Gambling.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 2.—Isidor Jacobs, San Francisco trustee of the Direct Legislation League, announced that race-track gambling in this State is undoubtedly doomed. He based the statement upon a poll of Senators and Assemblymen, which he says shows a good majority for the anti-betting bill in both houses. It is understood that Gov. Gillett already has practically agreed to sign the bill if passed by the Legislature. "We have received answers from forty-four Assemblymen who have announced themselves positively in favor of the anti-race-track gambling bill," said Jacobs. "Of the forty Senators, twenty-three are known to favor the bill. This will give a good majority in both houses. There is no doubt, however, that a hard fight will be made by Senator Leavitt, of Oakland; President Tom Williams, of the California Jockey Club, and 'Lucky' Baldwin, of the Santa Anita track, to beat the measure."

This medicine holds the world's healing record for coughs and colds and lung and throat diseases. It prevents pneumonia. Sold under guarantee at Phillips Drug store, 50c and $1.00. Extinct Stars Still Visible.

It is a fact, startling as it may seem, that many of the stars we see twinkling in the sky at night, may have ceased to exist centuries ago. Some of these stars are so distant that even light takes hundreds or thousands of years to travel from them to us; and the rays which enable us to see them to-day may have left them thousands of years ago. We see them, not as they are to-day, but as they were long ages ago.

WOMANILLS AGENT

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Shooting, she alleges, in defense of her sister, Miss Estelle Stout killed Henry Hornberger, agent for a picture enlarging concern. Mrs. A. As she arose she saw her sister, Miss Stout, standing with a smoking pistol in her hand, and her assailant dead.
